Historic Indo-US nuclear deal and NSG waiver opens India to multi-billion dollar nuclear commerce, according to Netscribes' Nuclear Power report

Netscribes (India) Pvt. Ltd., launches its Nuclear Power report covering the conventional power sector in India. The report covers the entire value chain, key government policies and competition.

Mumbai, India – March 5, 2009 – Netscribes (India) Pvt. Ltd., a knowledge consulting solutions company, announces the launch of its Nuclear Power in India report. The nuclear deal with the United States and waiver from NSG allows India to partake in civilian nuclear energy commerce covering technology and fuel from foreign countries. The development has huge implications with many companies, both foreign and domestic, displaying strong interest in the Indian government's ambitious nuclear energy programme.

The report shows the current size and share of nuclear energy as well as short-term and long-term targets indicating a demand ranging anywhere between USD 80 bn to USD 200 bn over the next twenty years. A detailed table shows the recent market activity including recent deals, opportunities being explored, and investments by foreign players, domestic private and government organizations. The major issues and challenges facing the domestic market including the possible role of Indian companies are also addressed. Since it is essential to know the role of different government organizations, the report includes brief profiles of these organizations. Additionally, a list of future projects - planned and under construction is also provided.

The Nuclear Power report is part of Netscribes' Power Industry series, which also includes Power Sector and other alternative energy sources like Solar Power and Wind Power, and the Power Backup market.
