Tremendous opportunities in India's conventional and alternative energy markets, according to Netscribes' Power Industry report series

Netscribes (India) Pvt. Ltd., launches its Power Industry report series covering conventional power sector and alternative energy like Nuclear, Solar, and Wind in India. The series also includes a report on the lucrative power backup devices market including generators, inverters and UPS.

Mumbai, India – March 5, 2009 – Netscribes (India) Pvt. Ltd., a knowledge consulting solutions company, announces the launch of its Power Industry report series covering the conventional energy and alternative energy market in India. Chronic power shortages, widening power supply-demand gap, and interest in alternative energy sources are offer good opportunities for investment encouraged by government policies.

“The Power Series is a very informative set of reports critical for those who are in the power industry or who are looking to invest in this sector. We believe that this sector will see tremendous growth in the near future” says Natasha Mehta, head of Strategic Development at Netscribes.

The Power Industry series includes Power Sector, Nuclear Power, Solar Power, Wind Power and the Power Backup market.
