India faces severe power shortage despite being the world's fifth largest producer thereby offering tremendous investment opportunities, according to Netscribes' Power Sector report

Netscribes (India) Pvt. Ltd., launches its Power Sector report covering the conventional power sector in India. The report covers the entire value chain, key government policies and competition.

Mumbai, India – March 5, 2009 – Netscribes (India) Pvt. Ltd., a knowledge consulting solutions company, announces the launch of its Power Sector report covering the conventional energy market in India. Chronic power shortages and widening power supply-demand gap is creating tremendous opportunity for private investment encouraged by government policies.

The report provides a snapshot of the power sector in India, including the installed capacity and growth and value chain analysis. It provides overview of the various components of value chain – Generation, Trading, Transmission and Distribution. An analysis of the government policies and incentives to boost the total installed capacity and also key trends and challenges are highlighted. Competitive landscape identifies the public sector undertakings, domestic and international private players in power sector market. It indicates the presence of each player across the value chain, installed capacity and key financials.

The Power Sector report is part of Netscribes' Power Industry series, which also includes alternative energy like Nuclear Power, Solar Power, Wind Power and the Power Backup market.
